

13 March 2014

Colleges Scotland's comment on ONS reclassification and college income streams

John Henderson, chief executive of Colleges Scotland said: "With 25% of colleges' income generated through commercial activity it is essential that colleges are able to maintain their independent income stream for the benefit of students, local communities and staff.

"The creation of arms-lengths foundations will ensure that the money generated by colleges will continue be used to benefit those colleges and learners."

ENDS