Comment on EIS-FELA Survey

A Colleges Scotland spokesperson said:

“The college sector has been working very closely with trade unions, the Scottish Government and its agencies to ensure that the return to campuses is done as safely as possible. Some appropriate staff members have been back working in campuses for some time, making the necessary preparations for the safe return of students and other staff in line with the latest Scottish Government and Public Health Scotland advice, which has allowed onsite skills tests to operate effectively and safely in recent days.

“Colleges will continue to engage with trade unions and members of staff to make the approach of blended online and onsite learning for students as successful as it can be throughout this new academic year. Although the practical implications of COVID-19 certainly present challenges to the sector, colleges and their staff have shown remarkable resilience and flexibility in continuing to successfully deliver learning throughout the pandemic.”
