Comment on Fire Safety in Colleges

Shona Struthers, Chief Executive, Colleges Scotland said:

“Colleges take the health and safety of their staff and students extremely seriously. In light of the Grenfell tragedy, colleges are urgently carrying out a review of all buildings, including materials used and construction, as well as undertaking relevant safety checks and reviewing their general fire safety procedures. The sector is working closely with the Scottish Funding Council, who are taking this forward on behalf of the Scottish Government, to assess all college estates and ensure a co-ordinated approach. Any action that is required will be taken.”
