College Leaver Destinations Survey 2013-14

Shona Struthers, Chief Executive, Colleges Scotland said:

“The data from the College Leaver Destinations Survey demonstrates the value delivered by the college sector. Our colleges are providing secure pathways to positive destination through continued education for our students and are well placed to help them on to subsequent employment. The report paints a positive picture of over 81% of further and higher education students going on to positive destinations, most of whom are remaining in education and training, demonstrating the great success that colleges are having in providing routes for students to continue and develop their studies.”
