Colleges Scotland's Comment on the EU Referendum

Responding to the result of the EU referendum, Shona Struthers, Chief Executive of Colleges Scotland said:

“We fully acknowledge the outcome of today’s referendum result. Students and staff can be rest assured that we don’t anticipate any immediate changes and that Scotland’s colleges will continue to deliver high quality courses that benefits them and the wider economy.

“Scotland’s colleges attract talent and develop projects from across the globe and we want to maintain our work with our European partners at all levels. It is important that we now work closely with both the Scottish and UK Governments in their negotiations with the EU to develop appropriate systems that enable our staff, students and projects to continue to flourish and excel in this new environment.”
